Defeat of Russians by Bulgars Ends Legend That Slav Issue Is a Factor in Hostilities

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Sept. 9.—German war correspondents on the Rumania-Bulgar front reported today that the German and Bulgarian armies have penetrated fifty miles into the Rumanian province of Dobrudja.

The Overseas News Agency in commenting upon the situation says:

"The fact that Bulgarian troops defeated the Russians in Rumania destroys the legend that Bulgarians would not fight against Russians because both are Slavs."

Russians Cross the Danube Into Serbia

London, Sept. 9.—Russian forces fighting with the Rumanians have forced a passage of the Danube and have invaded Serbia on the northeastern corner, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Athens today.

The Russians are reported to be advancing toward the Orient railway (the line that runs from Berlin to Constantinople), having already occupied the Serbian town of Negotin.

Negotin is seven miles inside the Serbian frontier.

This rarely graphic picture shows the ill-fated American warship high and fast on the honeycomb coral rocks off Santo Domingo City. It was taken at 5:25 p. m. on August 29, a few minutes after she struck, broadside on, only fifty yards from shore. At 4:30 p. m. she had been torn from her anchorage two miles out and started on her tragic shoreward journey by a sudden and amazing upheaval of the water, unaccompanied by strong wind.

With each heave of the waves, this 20,000-ton cruiser was lifted thirty feet and driven helplessly toward the reef.

Pet Dog Exposes the President to Attack of Rabies

Washington, Sept. 9.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. WILSON have just been unwittingly exposed to serious danger, it developed today. George Lawrence, a Washingtonian, Thursday took a thoroughbred collie to the White House for the President and Mrs. Wilson to inspect with a view to giving them the animal as a pet at Shadow Lawn, the Summer White House.

The President and Mrs. Wilson both patted the dog for several minutes. Last night the animal developed an aggravated case of rabies and several persons had narrow escapes from attacks from the hydrophobia-crazed dog before it was disposed of.

FIVE IN DANGER AS SCHOONER SINKS

The five members of the crew of the two-masted schooner Marguerite, coming up the harbor at dawn today, had to make a quick scramble into a dory towing astern and cut loose from their sinking vessel when the schooner was rammed and cut half in two by the steam lighter Eureka.

The Eureka, Captain Benner, was bound out for Newburyport to load sand. The Marguerite was coming up the harbor toward the Fish Pier under full sail.

Captain Eilard Geyer of the Marguerite said: "We were a sailing vessel, coming in, and so we had the right of way.

"But the Eureka hit us on the port side, and we sank in no time at all.

Eye-Witness Tells How Marine Phenomenon Wrecked the Memphis

Narrates Thrilling Experiences of Crew as Seas Heaved 20,000 Ton Cruiser Ashore.

Theodoor de Booy, a native of Holland and a scientist and explorer connected with the Museum of the American Indian, has written the accompanying narrative of what he saw on the afternoon of August 29 when the cruiser Memphis was wrecked on the coast of Santo Domingo.

His description constitutes the first intelligible account of the catastrophe that resulted in the loss of the fighting ship and of her crew and the injuring of about eighty of the survivors.

By THEODOOR DE BOOY.

Neither sky nor sea indicated a change in the perfect tropical weather. The barometer was undisturbed. Life in Santo Domingo City pursued its indolent, colorful way under an indigo sky.

In a tranquil, open roadstead two miles off the mouth of the Ozama River lay two of the American squadron that had been curbing the political aberrations of the Domini-

EVANS THREE UP ON GARDNER IN GOLF FINAL

Haverford, Pa., Sept. 9.—"Chick" Evans of Chicago was three up on Robert A. Gardner, also of Chicago, at the conclusion of the first eighteen holes of their match play at the Merion Crickett Club today for the national amateur golf championship.

MASTER AT PUTTING.

Evans went right after Gardner when play opened and won the first hole. Evans was master of his putting. He holed out a fifteen-footer on the first green for a "bird" three. On the second both Gardner and Evans were far up the fairway on their drives, and, using their brassies, shot to the edge of the green. Gard-

Archie Lamson and Albert Pasch, expressmen, saw what they thought was a doll floating in Lynn Harbor off the Reed & Cutler wharf today. They hauled the "doll" in and were horrified to find it was the body of a boy, about two months old. It had been in the water apparently three or four days.

ENGLAND REFUSES TO YIELD

London, Sept. 9.—"It is not likely that Great Britain will change her blacklist policy at the request of the United States," said Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, discussing the effect of recent American retaliatory measures. He declined to enter into the details of the contents of the expected reply in the American note protesting the British blacklist beyond the statement that the principle embodied in the policy forbidding trading with the enemy country is unlikely to be surrendered in any measure.

The minister professed to be puzzled by the provisions in the revenue bill passed by Congress at Washington, dealing with the proposition of imports, as such he said, were adopted strictly in an effort to conserve tonnage and were applied accordingly.

It was pointed out to Lord Cecil that the belief prevailed that consignments of firms trading with blacklisted firms might be refused shipment from America to the other neutral ports through the fear of not getting coal. Lord Cecil replied:

This fear is ungrounded, as we have no desire to interfere, nor does the law contemplate any interference with legitimate trade.

We are taking precautions to prevent an unjustified extension of the blacklist.

Questioned in regard to the fate of a ship accepting a consignment from a blacklisted firm to any South American port, the minister said:

I fear we have to insist that our nationals refuse to supply coal for such a purpose, and I am afraid that a refusal of the United States to permit the clearance of a vessel refusing such a consignment would cause friction between the two countries.

Prepare New U. S. Blacklist Protest.

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 9.—State Department officials today began assembling material for another peremptory demand on Great Britain to raise the boycott of American business firms following receipt of advance information on the forthcoming British answer.

Powers of retaliation Congress placed in the President's hands may be brought to work very soon. Secretary of State Lansing has been officially informed that the British reply to the blacklist note will be received shortly and that the British government practically will ignore the arguments of America that concerted good feeling between the nations cannot exist if there is to be an arbitrary rule enforced against American business firms.

Officials are closely studying plans for retaliation against England since they have learned they can expect no relief except that obtained by force, employed in a commercial way.

The British reply to Acting Secretary of State Polk's note written two weeks ago, is expected here not later than the middle of next week. Officials here have been informed that they should not entertain false hopes that the wishes of this government shall be complied with. They are, therefore, ready to employ every means available for bringing England to a point where she will have to yield to the American ideas of fairness.

Shortly after receipt of the British reply it will be answered by a note in which the British government officially will be informed of the powers of retaliation recently placed by Congress in the President's hands. Unless Great Britain answers much quicker than it looks for her to agree on an unsatisfactory reply to the first boycott note every British ship will be in danger of being held up in American harbors and clearances refused.

WAR SUMMARY

The Russians in considerable strength have joined the Rumanians in Dobrudja, according to the German official bulletin today.

Small groups of Russians have been fighting with the Rumanians there for some time.

The united force attacked in the direction of Dobric, but was repulsed, the Germans say in their bulletin.

The situation there is this: The Teutonic allies sought to push as far into Dobrudja as possible before the Russians arrive, and then to hold their lines. If they succeed in holding a line along the Dobrudja frontier, the victory is theirs. It is incorrect to assume that they planned any extended offensive in this region. Only an amazing collapse of the Rumanians there could have led them to push far northward or to attempt the crossing of the Danube.

The Russian attacks in Galicia, to the east of Halicz, have made further progress, forcing back the Austrians there, Vienna officially admitted today. Halicz is the principal defensive position south of Lemberg, and the Austrians will use every effort to defend the position. Its loss will be a correspondingly heavy blow to them.

The Russians also gained in the Carpathians, where they have made a junction with the Rumanian forces. The Austrians are steadily withdrawing in the Transylvania region, meanwhile, to their probable line of defence on the river and mountain frontier slanting southwest from the northern Rumanian border.

The Somme was relatively uneventful today, though vigorous efforts were made by both sides. The French reported some small gains in the region south of Peronne.

Verdun was quiet today, and there was nothing of importance from the Italian theatre of war.

PUSH BACK AUSTRIAN FRONT

By International News Service.

Vienna via Berlin Wireless, Sept. 9.—Gains for the Russians east of Halicz and in the Carpathians were admitted in the following official statement, dated September 6, and made public by the War Office today:

"Russian front: Army group of Archduke Karl in the Carpathians. After violent attacks lasting all day, the Russians gained small advantages. Other attempts to conquer ground failed. East of Halicz there has been bitter fighting. After several storm attacks the enemy pressed back this part of our line.

7,700 ARE TAKEN BY FRENCH

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Sept. 9.—In the past six days the French have captured 7,700 German prisoners, it was stated in the official communique issued by the War Office today.

A wood east of Belloy en Santerre, at the southern end of the Somme front, was captured by the French in attacks last night, and further progress was also made in the German trenches in the sector of Deniecourt, southwest of Belloy.

Error by British Shows Vanderbilt as 'Hun Pirate'

London, Sept. 9.—Fleet street is agog with talk over a serio-tragic mistake, which, unless settled in the meantime, will be rectified in the high courts. On August 23, last, an illustrated daily printed on its back page a large photograph of a man in yachting dress and wearing a naval cap. Underneath the photograph was the inscription: "Max Valentier," while over it stood the following: "The Lusitania Pirate. No murderer's face ever seen in the dock was more typical than this. Yet Germany hails it as a hero." Captain Valentier, son of the dean of the Sonderburg Cathedral, is the Hun pirate who torpedoed the Lusitania. He looks capable of so dastardly a deed."

The photograph is one of Cornelius Vanderbilt taken some time ago in yachting costume. The irony of the whole affair is that Vanderbilt's brother, Alfred, was one of the best known victims of the Lusitania.

It is understood that Mr. Vanderbilt has served the proprietors of the paper with a writ for libel.

BRITISH TAKE TRENCH IN FURIOUS BATTLE

By SIDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Sept. 9.—In a furious hand-to-hand combat the British captured another trench from the Germans in the sector of High Wood (Foreaux Forest) last night, according to the official report issued by the War Office today.

Heavy casualties were inflicted upon the Germans.

German batteries were active and a heavy bombardment was carried out against certain British positions.

The official report follows:

"Last night there was sharp hand-to-hand fighting at High Wood, where we captured a German trench. Two officers and nineteen Bavarians of the rank and file were made prisoners and we inflicted heavy casualties upon the enemy.

"There was considerable artillery fire directed against our front north of Pozieres and in the neighborhood of Mequet Farm. In this sector a small infantry attack by the enemy was repulsed. A detachment of German troops tried to advance from Courcelette, but was stopped.

"In the neighborhood of Arras and Hohenzollern redoubt (Arrois front) and north of Neuve Chappelle enemy trenches were entered and some prisoners were taken, as well as casualties inflicted upon the Germans."

REPORT U-LINER HAS BEEN LOST AT SEA

Washington, Sept. 9.—The merchant submarine Bremen passed the British channel patrol and was due to arrive in American waters ten days ago. Its failure to put in an appearance by this time practically convinced naval experts that she has been lost at sea.

This information comes from an official and unquestionably authentic source. It is learned that the Bremen successfully completed the first and most hazardous stage of her transatlantic journey. She was later in her schedule than the captain of the submarine Deutschland predicted while he was in the United States, and this is accounted for on the ground that she was obliged to make several attempts to elude the British patrol.

But it is now known definitely that the Bremen did get past the British patrol and that the Admiralty fully expected to hear of her arrival in the United States. Counting to her maximum period for the journey, it is said she should have arrived in American waters ten days ago.

The only explanation of her non-appearance is that she has met with some mishap and has been lost. It is not believed now that her fate ever will be certainly known.

Military information obtained from Germany shows that twelve merchant submarines have been constructed or are under course of construction. Some of these, if not all of them, it is said, were transformed from cruiser submarines of a type that was not altogether successful for military operations.

How successful they will be as commercial submarines, it is thought, is problematical, as they lack certain of the advantages in the racy lines given to the Deutschland, which was developed primarily as a merchant craft.

TELLS OF WRECK OF CRUISER MEMPHIS

can people. These were the cruiser Memphis and the gunboat Castine.

At about 3:45 p. m. a cutter left the Memphis with twenty-five sailors who had been given a few hours' shore leave. Another cutter and a steam launch were alongside the cruiser taking on other shore-goers.

Five minutes later occurred a marine phenomenon absolutely new to the experience of all who beheld it, including the natives of the island, accustomed as they are to outbursts of tropical storms.

There was no storm. Only the faintest of breezes stirred the palms under the unclouded sky. Yet suddenly the sea began to rage like a lion. The upheaval, more terrifying to the eye because of the lazy beauty of air and sky, seemed to have arisen from the secret depths.

The roadstead became an angry mass of foaming waves in which no small craft could live.

FIRST CUTTER VANISHES.

Horrified observers saw the first cutter from the Memphis, now half way to shore, rise and then suddenly disappear.

A number of black specks momentarily visible in the boiling smother where she had last been seen were the heads of sailors struggling for life against overwhelming odds.

Just at that time the steam launch and cutter that had been alongside the Memphis were seen to detach themselves from her and head out for the open sea.

It was about 4 p. m. when the little gunboat Castine, which had been tossed like a cork as she strained at her anchor, got free and made her gallant attempt to rescue the imperiled company of the Memphis' cutter.

Swamped from stem to stern with huge waves, she was carried at one time perilously close to the rocky shore.

She succeeded, however, in saving eight men and then in reaching the open sea. These she subsequently picked up the other cutter of the Memphis, but the steam launch had capsized and gone down.

Two men from that launch and one from the first cutter were afterward cast ashore, alive, about four miles to the westward of the scene of the disaster.

SEAS HEAVE SHIP ASHORE.

At 4:30 a cry of alarm was raised over the situation of the Memphis. Lifted time after time by immense waves, the cruiser was seen to be dragging her powerful anchors toward the shore.

The great 20,000-ton warship would rear up thirty feet on the crests of the giant combers, each time heaving closer to the coral ledges, where they broke into foam.

Soon we could make out the individuals on her decks as they busied themselves to avert disaster. The entire population of the city lined the shore, watching the progress of this drama, so deliberate and so inevitable.

The climax came at 5:16 p. m. A wave that seemed larger than any that had preceded it heaved and held the cruiser on its summit for a moment, then flashed it down with a perceptible jar on a submerged reef within 200 yards of dry land.

The scene on shore was one of wild excitement. A large force of United States marines and a crowd of good-hearted Dominicans, who forgot in that moment their resentment against American interference in their affairs, lined up on the shore with life lines ready for service.

From the after ventilators of the cruiser was pouring a cloud of steam. The naval men on shore needed no other proof that she had met with a serious internal disaster which had prevented her from making her escape like the Castine.

Her main steampipe had burst, scalding a large number of men. The sufferers were now led on deck, preparatory to being sent on shore first.

SAYS SHE SAW MAN SLAIN

New York, Sept. 9.—A woman witness of the shooting of Dwight F. Dilworth has further complicated the mystery of the Van Cortlandt Park tragedy.

If her statement that she saw a woman fire the shot can be supported an arrest will be made.

The delay in making the arrest is due to the flat contradiction of her story by the man who, she says, was her companion on the night of the shooting.

The man, who is married, and has a family, supports his denial of her statement by an alibi. There is only one supporting witness to this alibi. But so far the police have been unable to shatter it.

Fifteen detectives are working on the task. They are resorting to the primitive methods of the dragnet and all the known habitues of the park are to be questioned. If no one can be found who will swear he saw the man in company with the woman witness the police say they will feel justified in making the arrest.

The woman's story was attacked from every angle. She flatly charged that the man she named not only accompanied her to the park but actually saw the shooting just as she says she did.

MAN ATTACKS WOMAN'S STORY.

She seems worthy of crediting, so the police say, but the man has defended himself with the statement that she must have some ulterior motive in dragging him into the case.

Coroner Flynn says he is not satisfied with the robbery theory as a basis for an inquest.

"I want some more facts," he said. "Together with the police and the district attorney's office we are leaving nothing undone. Mrs. Dilworth is expected here. She may have some evidence to support her charge that jealousy was the motive and that a woman fired the shot."

Important developments in the case follow:

Examination of Dilworth's papers was made to establish a motive for the murder. Dragging of nearby ponds for the revolver was done.

Investigation of the story of Arlington, N. J., garage owner, who said a woman resembling Miss McNiff, accompanied by Dilworth, had gone there in an automobile.

Questioning of Daniel F. Anglin, a lawyer's investigator, and James C. Cleary, former partner of Dilworth, both of whom said there had been threats against the life of Dilworth.

NO MOTIVE FOR KILLING.

No motive has been established. There is only one real witness who is so other than one whose story it is said might lead to an arrest.

Miss McNiff, companion of Dilworth's tragic ride, has told a straightforward story of the short, stocky men who did the shooting and then, frightened, ran away.

Captain Wines, who has been conducting the probe, declares that he had no evidence that would lead to an arrest in the near future.

"There have been developments since the first inquiry on Sunday night, Coroner Flynn said, "which convince me that some startling facts may be brought out. I am not at all convinced as to how the man was killed.

"One point I intend to clear up is whether Dilworth and Miss McNiff were on terms of social friendship some months before their business relations began. For that purpose I intend to go through all the personal papers in Dilworth's office, picking out the documents which I consider as having a bearing on the case."

The police have spent much time investigating Dilworth's associations and activities in which women are concerned. They have found, according to report, that, although the lawyer enjoyed only a modest income, he frequently entertained his women friends and automobile rides, suppers and other expensive pleasures were not unusual with him.

FEAR SPREAD OF PLAGUE.

State and city health officials admit the seriousness of the dreaded disease. They are fighting desperately to check it before it becomes an epidemic similar to the one which claimed hundreds of lives in New York and which will leave hundreds of persons cripples.

The plague has been discovered in the North End, where a two-year-old boy, living on Salem street, has been stricken. On account of the large number of persons living in that section of the city in crowded tenement houses every precaution will be taken to check the disease.

ZACHARACH HELD FOR KILLING

Stell Zacharach, the Hotel Essex waiter who was arrested in a thrilling raid on a house at No. 418 Columbus avenue for the murder of Charles W. Cranney, head waiter in the hotel, was arraigned before Judge Sheehan in the Municipal Court this morning.

Zacharach's attorney, Harry E. Levenson, waived examination, and Sergeant Anderson of Station 4 moved that the prisoner be dismissed because of the fact that he was arrested on an indictment warrant. Judge Sheehan did not dismiss him, but left it for the district attorney to not pros. which he did.

Sergeant Anderson then stepped into the dock and re-arrested the murderer, who was a pitiful spectacle as he stood at the bar of justice. Worry, confinement and lack of fresh air and nourishing food have left their mark upon him since the day he killed his co-worker in the Hotel Essex dining room in full view of a score of diners.

Following the conclusion of the legal formalities he was re-lodged in the Charles Street Jail, where he is held without bail for trial in the Criminal Session of the Superior Court.

IN TWO PARTS.

The confession of Zacharach, as the police told it, divides into two parts. The first contains his own explanation of why he shot Cranney. This may be summarized as—drink, discharge, more drink, shooting.

The second part starts with Zacharach's escape from the confusion at the hotel, his refuge in the lodging house belt of the South End and the hideous succession of days that culminated in his capture.

It is most dramatic, that second part. It fell on the police ears, from Zacharach's lips in faltering sentences, as he forced his memory back over the unending stretch.

Here is the man's own story:

"I worked hard at the Essex to get a certain 'stand' which paid well for a waiter. Finally I got it. Trouble arose. I was discharged as a non-union man.

"A week ago Monday I went to the manager. Things were fixed up. I joined the union, was hired back and celebrated it with several drinks. Cranney, the head-waiter, smelled liquor on me and discharged me. I was angry. I went out and had more drinks.

"I went to my room on 10th street and got a revolver, which I had had for some time. I returned to the hotel and found Cranney at dinner in the main dining room and shot him.

"After the shooting, I walked right out through the hotel to the rear exit on East street, went up along Columbus avenue and decided to hire a room to hide in.

"I went into No. 418 and hired a room on the top-floor front, with a smaller room next to it.

"There I stayed and stayed. My fear of the police kept me in except when I was forced to go out for food.

"I did not try, however, to disguise my appearance. I relied mainly on the darkness.

"Yesterday I was hungry and I went out in the daytime again for something to eat. They tell me that some one recognized me on the street and telephoned the police. I returned to my room.

"Just before 3 o'clock the door of my room was suddenly opened. I saw a policeman and knew that I was caught at last."

The Hotel Essex, the waiters' union and its benevolent association each offered $500 reward for Zacharach's capture, a total of $1,000. But the police do not know yet who gave them the clew to the man's hiding place. Some man telephoned police headquarters yesterday that Zacharach was in a top floor front room at the Columbus avenue address. But the informant neglected or did not wish to give his name. The police are puzzled about the reward question.

Sergeant Martin King of Lagrange street station and a squad of men went to the Columbus avenue house. Entrances were guarded. Sergeant King and Patrolmen John A. Sullivan and William H. Burns entered the house. The actual capture was made by Sullivan, who described it thus:

OFFICER TELLS OF CAPTURE.

"I went directly to the room after the officers had been posted at various parts of the building and in the rear. It was the right room that I first entered. I had my gun, the same one that I used to capture the highwayman Butts five years ago, and I said, 'Hello, Stell.' You see I have known Zacharach for a long time. He did not answer but started towards me. When he saw that I had a gun, however, he backed away, and made a break for the window, meaning to throw himself out to the street three stories below. I knew what his intention was, and jumped for him, overpowering him.

"I declared, 'You are Stell Zacharach,' and he replied, 'Yes, I am sorry.' I asked him what he had killed Cranney for, and he said, 'I don't know. I was drunk.'

"Before we left the room he asked me to let him have a drink out of the glass on a washstand, but if I had let him drink it, he would never have left the room for it was an ounce of some kind of poison. Evidently he was prepared for the event of his capture.

"In his pocket was the gun with which he shot Cranney, all loaded and ready for use. He had only thirty-five cents in his pocket when he was arrested, and said that he had not eaten for a long time. He was a mere shadow compared to what he used to be, but would have proved desperate if he had not been taken by surprise."

Business Man of 45 Leaves Family, Runs Away With Girl, 22

When neighbors went today to console Mrs. Charles H. Grettler, whose husband, treasurer of the Louis F. Merry Company, has eloped with the girl who was his stenographer and his son's sweetheart, Mrs. Grettler told them calmly enough.

"Well—he's gone. But I guess I can paddle my own canoe."

In admitting that the elopement had occurred, she said:

"I want my husband to return, and I have only pity for the girl.

"I hope the girl is restored to her father. And as for my husband, I want him to come back again.

"Not here, though. Not here. What is there left for him here?

"He has lost every friend he had here or he will lose them when this affair becomes known."

RECEIVED MESSAGE.

The elopement had been kept quiet since Sunday. Then Fred H. Merrill of Eastman road, Somerville, father of the girl, received a telegram from his daughter, dispatched from Worcester.

She told him in that telegram that she and Grettler had eloped, and added:

"I fought him for six years."

Mrs. Grettler has two daughters, one eighteen and one fifteen, with her today at their home on Eckman road, North Weymouth. Mr. Grettler was a baker, and a year ago he became treasurer of the Merry company, which is located at No. 4 Charter street.

When he went to the Merry company, he took with him the girl, Winifred Merrill, to serve as his stenographer.

She is twenty-two. She had been his stenographer for five years before he came to the Merry company.

Leslie M. Grettler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grettler, is with the National Guard at El Paso. It was he, according to the officials and others at the offices of the Merry Company, who appeared to pay Miss Merrill most attention.

SON NOT INFORMED.

He came frequently to the office, apparently to see her. He not infrequently accompanied her home, and those in the office generally believed that they were, if not engaged, at least sweethearts.

Grettler in El Paso, the son, has not yet heard of what happened.

Neighbors of the Merrill family in Somerville said today that Miss Merrill was a quiet, loving woman, refined, faithful, yet particularly good looking, and at all times the sort of a figure about whom one weaves a romance.

She was referred to last night as "a fine girl, but rather with affection—as the little old maid."

They said she spent most of her time at home with Mrs. Merrill, that they knew she occasionally rode in the Grettler automobile, but always with a party of other folk.

She attended the Somerville High School for a time, then went to a business college in Boston.

The news of her elopement astonished them.

ADMIRED EMPLOYER.

But the feeling on each side was regarded as merely natural. Every one saw in her admiration for Grettler simply the gratitude and respect of an employee for her employer. His admiration for her was taken to be the natural attitude of a father-in-law for the girl everyone expected his son to marry.

The elopement was a profound surprise to everyone who knew them.

BODY OF SOLDIER ON THE WAY HOME

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 9.—The body of Private Fred W. Houston of Company D, Eighth Regiment, was put aboard the train bound for his former home, No. 12 Buckaway street, Lynn, after an impressive service here.

The body was accompanied to the station by the members of his former company. Chaplain H. Boyd Edwards of the Eighth Regiment read prayers at the undertaking rooms, while his former comrades passed about the coffin with bared and bowed heads.

THREATEN GENERAL STRIKE

New York, Sept. 9.—The Central Federation Union, representing approximately 150,000 men and women workers, today authorized the appointment of a committee with full power to call a general sympathetic strike in all trades if such action is deemed necessary to help the striking traction employes gain recognition of their union in the struggle with the Interborough Rapid Transit and New York Railways Company.

President John F. Riley of the International Longshoremen's Association has ordered members of the Tidewater Boatmen's Union not to handle coal barges loaded with fuel for the power plants of the Interborough.

James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the Interborough gave notice that applications for injunctions restraining labor leaders from interfering with the employes would be filed.

The threat of a sympathetic strike by the Central Federated Union and the boycott declared by the New York railway companies that strike-breakers would be used on its surface lines made the third day of the strike a crucial period in the struggle.

Up to today the company had run only a reduced number of cars, using employes who had remained loyal, but when strike-breakers begin operations it is expected that many of these fraternal men will walk out and that marked disorder will follow.

City officials began the day with their hopes of a settlement of the struggle lessening. Unfavorable opinion was reflected in Mayor Mitchel's statement that he was "determined that order shall be maintained in the city, the safety of the travelling public insured, and protection given to life and property."

SUNDAY HAS 18 SUITS AND THE HAY FEVER

Winona Lake, Ind., Sept. 9.—Rev. "Billy" Sunday, with 18 suits of clothes, 24 shirts, 24 suits of underwear, 50 collars, 36 pairs of socks, 12 neckties, six pairs of shoes and hay fever, has begun his twenty-fifth year of saving sinners. He will start his first campaign of the season at Detroit Sunday morning, and this is his last campaign before going to Boston.

Sunday's trunks show that he enjoys the liveries of life while campaigning for Christ. He said:

"A man owes it to himself to dress as well as he can afford."

And Billy needs a lot of clothes if he's to wear fresh ones all the time. Because he splashes sweat with every sermon.

He never wears the same suit throughout one day during campaigns; he seldom wears the same suit twice a week, and a suit never sees a second sun without a fresh pressing. The Sunday laundry bill during campaigns is usually about $65 a week, and most of this is charged against the evangelist, but Billy isn't taking a derby in his outfit. "Look at all the bums and whiskey-soaked politicians going around with derbies cocked over their ears!" he advised.

Which may be taken as a tip by the Boston clergy and laity who plan to greet him when he comes to their city this Fall.

Billy has suffered with hay fever during his stay at his home here this month, but he says he feels fit in every way for the hardest year of his career, with Boston, Detroit and probably New York on his schedule.

10-CENT LOAF IS WANTED BY BAKERS

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Recommendations to all bakers of the United States that the five-cent loaf of bread be abandoned and the ten-cent loaf standardized, were made after much discussion at the closing session of the executive committee of the National Association of Master Bakers.

Economic waste incident to the manufacture of the five-cent loaf was claimed. Saving in manufacture, improvement in quality and standardization are urged in favor of the ten-cent loaf.

LEGISLATURE TO RESUME WORK NEXT WEEK

Governor McCall today called a special session of the Legislature for Tuesday, September 12, at 11 o'clock.

The purpose is to take action on appointing a special primary day for Suffolk County, made necessary by the order of the Supreme Court setting aside the work of the Apportionment Board.

AID FOR DEPENDENTS.

The Governor will also ask the Legislature to take action on voting aid to dependents of soldiers now at the border and to pass legislation allowing the soldiers to vote for federal offices while out of the State.

Previous to calling the extra session the Governor took up the matter with the Council, which approved his action. The Governor's proclamation says:

TO GIVE VOTE TO TROOPS.

It is not apparent that our Massachusetts soldiers at the border will be returned to the Commonwealth before the November election, and consequently they may be deprived of the right of suffrage.

The welfare of the Commonwealth requires that provision be made to allow them to vote for such candidates as the Legislature may honor our Constitution may have power to authorize them to vote for, and also that legislation be passed making possible the appropriation of money by the Commonwealth and its various cities and towns, which, in conjunction with any provisions made by the national government, will pay them and those dependent upon them suitably for the services of the soldiers to the end that they and their families may enjoy what is rightfully theirs.

The action of the Supreme Judicial Court in declaring unconstitutional the apportionment of the County of Suffolk into representative districts has created a situation which requires immediate changes in our election laws in order to ensure due representation to the voters of Suffolk.

SENATORS TO MAKE WAR ON BURLESON

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 9.—A coterie of Democratic senators has been quietly organized to force Postmaster-General Burleson out of the cabinet should President Wilson be re-elected. It is President Wilson's avowed purpose and decides to renominate Mr. Burleson these senators will fight the postmaster-general's confirmation.

The shameless vote of the Senate rejecting Chicago's choice for postmaster at Chicago gave a hint of the Senate's attitude towards Mr. Burleson. Mr. Williams was Burleson's personal choice.

These senators accused the postmaster-general of going over their heads to President Wilson and meddling in purely local patronage fights.

DRY LEADERS OFF ON 2 MONTHS' TRIP

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The most pretentious campaign ever attempted by the Prohibition party was launched from Chicago today, when a special train left for the coast bearing J. The train will be on the road until the elections.

Mr. Hanly declared both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes are "without the real issue. Both are committed to the perpetuation of a traffic which makes it impossible for us to play the part in the world as we should play."

PUT DEATH BLAME ON HEALTH BOARD

Washington, Pa., Sept. 9.—Mrs. J. W. Sharp, of Canton, Ohio, today charged the health department at Pittsburgh with responsibility for the death of her baby. The woman declared that she was held up with her five children nearly fourteen hours at the Pittsburgh Union Station because she had no certificate to permit her passage through the infantile paralysis quarantine. During this time, Mrs. Sharp charges, she was unable to get food for her children and finally her infant son was taken ill. He died later in the Allegheny Hospital, his death being ascribed to malnutrition.

TRAINING TABLE ON MONDAY

Harvard Football Squad Has Day of Rest From Its Labors; Heat Prevents Conditioning.

Harvard's football warriors are enjoying a day of rest, having been dismissed last night with orders to report again for practice on Soldiers' Field on Monday at 11 o'clock. The men will meet before that time, for the squad of fifty will go to the training table at the Varsity Club starting with breakfast Monday morning.

The heat so far has prevented the candidates from doing very much conditioning, Coach Leo Leary and Trainer "Pooch" Donovan being easy taskmasters. The majority of the men are close to their regular every-day weight, but the candidates for the middle of the rushline in several cases could stand a good sweating-out process without disaster.

TWO SESSIONS.

Morning and afternoon sessions were held yesterday, each one lasting less than an hour. Field Coach Lou H. Leary had only one scrimmage, a staff out, Mal Logan, who is to aid in coaching the quarterback. Al Weatherhead, sub end on the team, who is to coach Bowdoin, got into long in the afternoon and worked with the backs. Another visitor to the field was Joe Pendleton, the well-known football official. Pendleton has recovered from the illness which kept him off the field last fall, but is in readiness for work later in the season. Jack Doherty, quarterback at Wisconsin, was also a side line spectator.

In the afternoon practice, the squad was divided into two teams, each segregated and coached by fellow-players who have had more experience on gridiron fields with their mates. Rushing, falling on the ball, the crawl, and charging were a few of the fundamentals and stunts that kept all the squads busy.

BACKFIELD FORMATIONS.

Several backfield formations were tried late in the day, the best looking group being composed of Bill Robinson at quarterback, receiving passes from center, Joe Crowley, Ted Hoyt being Ralph Horween, Tom Thacher and Westmore Willcox. Another formation was made up of De Blois in centre, Minot, Hitchcock and Batchelder backs, with Billy Murray and Winslow Felton alternating at quarterback.

One or two shifts in placing the men may be tried out next week, the material for some of the posts on the rush line being plentiful, while in other cases there is a search of talent. Only George Flynn of last year's freshman eleven, and Hudnut, a junior, are seeking places at tackle. With a fine set of backs ahead set on grabbing the two guard places, it would not be surprising if either Captain Dadian or Stookey Taylor were shifted from guard to tackle. Both lads are somewhat heavier than the usual run of tackles, but Dadman especially is built along the same lines that can fit him almost any position on the rush line.

TAYLOR SENDS WORD.

Taylor is "somewhere" in Colorado, but has written to Cambridge that he is in good condition. Unless he arrives before the twentieth, he may find that the coaches will be unwilling to start him in the opener against Colby on the twenty-third. Billy Robinson is being groomed as a halfback. The coaches figure that if he is to do the drop kicking that it is better that some one else take the task of distributing the signals. Robinson is playing the position in demand of a good halfback, but lighter men than he have made good in the Crimson's service as halfbacking.

The departure of Winthrop Burr deprives the team of a rather good guard. Dr. Nichols passed on Burr's physical qualifications, and incidentally wrecked another year's vacation before reporting for the team.

OUTSIDER WINDS UP SET-TO

Fan Grabs Sheppard's Leg at C. A. C. and Johnny Downes Is Thereby Declared Loser.

By RINGSIDE

Johnny Downes, the South Boston featherweight, did his gal-dandiest to knock Charley Sheppard off his winning streak, and thereby revenge the two recent fall-downs of Johnny Donovan, his running mate in the Josephus McCarthy stable, in their game of flatfoots at the Commercial A. C. last night.

Downes, after the first swinging, as they say on the race track, and at the end of the fifth round had a substantial lead over Sheppard. For all that Charley was taking what was coming his way without wincing, though truth it be told he was running a sure, positive second.

DOWNES SLOWS UP.

Downes came out for the sixth round dead on his feet. Sheppard won this frame. The arratic one also gained the honors in the seventh, though the fans in the front seats were confident they observed Downes gaining the edge in the second.

The eighth found opened with both boys feinting and at each other. Sheppard, as usual, was guilty of more or less rough work, and, according to Referee Joe Howley, the New Yorker "sweet" him.

Be that as it may, Sheppard had tackled Downes to the ropes and was trying to wrestle him when a spectator, disgusted at Charley's performance, reached up and jerked him by the leg. Sheppard followed by aiming a kick at Downes. 'Twas all very pretty—not.

Right away Referee Jack Sheenan stepped between the boys. He waved Downes to his corner and proclaimed Sheppard the winner. Explaining his decision later, Sheehan stated he thought it was one of Downes' seconds who had tackled Sheppard. Hence his verdict.

George Robinson, the Cambridge brunette, was too polished for Curly Armstrong, though Curly did make it better than was expected, and looms up as an improving prospect. In the semi-final Robinson dropped Armstrong.

Frankie McCloskey stepped Jimmy Burns in the second round, while Bill Casey kept on his winning streak by disposing of Tim Dolan in the third.

It is to be Young Brito, the crack young New Bedford featherweight, against Monte Attell, the noted Californian, in the main number next Friday night. They are to come in at 122 pounds ringside.

Attell has been doing great work in New York rings of late months, though Wednesday night he came to grief when he tackled Joe Lynch. Lynch looms up as the best little fellow in the game, and is slated to go over to London and meet Jimmy Wilde for the flyweight title.

TONIGHT'S REVERE CARD.

World's Cycling Derby—(100 kilometers)—Starters: Victor Linart, champion, Antwerp, Belgium; George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y.; Clarence Carman, Jamaica, L. I.; Leon Didier, Paris; Vincent Madonna, Providence, Amateur and professional events. Starting time—8:15 p. m.

The world's cycling derby, bike-dom's stellar contest, comes up for decision at the Revere cycle track tonight. The race will be ridden over a 100-kilometer course (62½ miles).

Five of the world's most famous riders, representing four countries, will try for this coveted prize, now held by Victor Linart, the Belgian flier. The field that will go to the post includes, in addition to Linart, George Wiley, Clarence Carman, Vincent Madonna and Leon Didier.

That Linart faces one of the hardest tussles of his brilliant career is a foregone conclusion, and, if he successfully retains his title, he will certainly deserve the honor and all that goes with it.

The two Americans, Wiley and Carman, are the riders Linart fears the most, and, strange to say, Wiley in spite of his poor showing at the beach oval this season, is being generally picked as the real contender.

Wiley showed a flash of his old form at Philadelphia last week, winning a race of exactly the same distance. That is why the diminutive Syracuse flier has long the respect of Linart. Nor are Madonna and Didier to be overlooked.

Tonight's admission prices will bear a slight increase in order to meet the expenses of staging the event. Major Curtis of Boston will be the guest of honor and may start the big race.

FOSTER ADVISED TO QUIT FOR SEASON

Washington, Sept. 9.—Pitcher George Foster of the Red Sox, who is having a lot of trouble with his right arm, and who is reported to have exhibited splendid gameness gaining his shut-out triumph in Philadelphia Thursday, had his head-winner examined by a local specialist yesterday.

Foster was advised to retire for the season and told he might ruin his arm for all time if he insisted upon doing any work. For all that, the noted hurler says he won't quit.

This Is Kelliher Day

Dell and Barnes Pitch

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Kelliher Day at Braves Field, so called in honor of Jack Kelliher, the young Brookline boy, whom the Robins recently purchased from Denver, will find Wheezer Dell or Rube Marquard facing Jess Barnes or Ed Reulbach. The Braves hope to accomplish that which they found impossible yesterday, a win over the Robins. But one game is scheduled, the starting time being 3 o'clock.

Several hundred Brookline fans will attend the game in a body and during the course of the afternoon Timothy Hayes Murnane, on behalf of the delegation, will present Kelliher with a token of the esteem in which his fellow townsmen hold him. It is hoped that Manager Robinson sees fit to use Kelliher during the game especially as his friends will be on hand en masse. However, with the race close, it is probable that "Robby" will make use of his veteran player, Ivan Olson.

HUGHES' HAND BROKEN.

This morning found Manager Stallings in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. He had received the positive information that a bone was broken in Tom Hughes' hand and furthermore was fully aware that Art Nehf wouldn't be available for some time yet, if at all this season. Then to top it off it seemed certain that S. Robert Mayer would draw a suspension as a result of his run-in with Lord Willyum Baker.

Despite all the tough breaks the Braves' boss hasn't given up the ghost as yet. He feels that the breaks can't go against his team all the time and that sooner or later they will get going again. The sooner part of it, in his mind, is at hand. He hopes to land today's game and start off Monday with a repeat. Next week will be another week and during the course of it he intends to land the Braves at home in front more than once.

MUST WIN A GAME.

Barnes hasn't had to pitch so much this week but what he can go right back this afternoon, which would allow Rudolph to work Monday. In event of Barnes not showing, it seems sure that Ed Reulbach would draw the job of trying to stave the Robins off. The Phillies will be in another double-header at the Polo Grounds today, and Stallings has visions of a double win by the Giants.

If that be the case and if the Braves land from the Robins, they will be considerably nearer the top of the heap than they are at this writing. They are now but three and a half games back of the lead, which is held by the Phillies as a result of percentage, Brooklyn being but two points behind. The Braves must stop their loosing streak at once or pass out of all consideration in the race.

BATTING SHAKEUP.

Possibly the batting shakeup which Manager Stallings plans may produce results now. Maranville was all right in the lead-off position as long as he had his true sight. However, since Zimmerman bounced the bit off his nose and broke it, the Rabbit hasn't been able to see at all up to his regular form. At present Fred Snodgrass is in the lead-off position, with Maranville batting eighth, the post usually occupied by Hank Gowdy. Hankus is now hitting seventh.

As a result of Magee's little bit of trouble there may be a still further shift today when time is called for the game. Either Chappelle, Connolly or Eddie Collins will fill Magee's position should Tener decide to suspend him. The only player who seemed able to hit at all after the first shift yesterday was Ed Konetchy, who had three fine blows in four trips to the plate.

CLUB IN A RUT.

For the past few days the club has appeared to be in a deep rut from which they have been unable to extricate themselves. It was thought that following the trip to Cohasset they might make a recovery which would prove beneficial. They didn't, however, but possibly the recovery will be apparent today. To land the games that remain to be played they must display real championship baseball. They must recall that from now on the team is without the services of Tom Hughes, who has been a mighty valuable asset during the race.

If Stallings succeeds in pulling them together again and whipping them under the wire in front, he will be truly entitled to the title of Miracle Man. It's some job that confronts him and one which will require the exercise of all the managerial strategy he possesses.

GARDNER IS OUT OF GAME.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Third Baseman Larry Gardner of the Red Sox has his injured foot bandaged up and there is but a slim chance of him appearing in the series here. If he is able to open in the West Manager Carrigan will be happy.

Four Marks Fractured

Colby and Weeks Score

Newark, N. J., Sept. 9.—Four meet records were shattered and one equalled in the National Junior Track and Field Championships which were held at Weequahic Park. A heavy shower fell while the early part of the program was being contested, making the track soft, but it had no effect on the runners' time.

The meet was interesting and competition in all but two of the events was keen and exciting. The struggle for the point honors was one sided, the New York A. C. scoring in almost every event. It carried off the team honors by a wide margin, turning in a card with fifty-two aces.

The Chicago A. A. made an excellent showing with its small team, scoring second place with twenty points. The Irish-American A. C. of New York, which has always been high up in the race for team honors in championship meets, made a poor showing. By scouring a place in the javelin, the final event to be decided, the wing-footed faction was given third place. It scored sixteen points. Points were well scattered. Twenty-seven organizations managed to get in the scoring, which is a much better showing than in previous meets. As far as the West and the East were concerned in the scoring of the points, the East had the better of the argument.

The first record driven into oblivion was the quarter-mile, W. P. Howard, of the Pittsburgh A. A. a boy about 5 feet 4 inches in height and with crude form, small stride, but an abundance of speed, who had the lid for Father Time the jolt that shattered his wits. The dusky City lad maintained the lead to the tape and won by a yard from F. Lagay of the New York A. C.

The victor ran the distance in 50 4-5 seconds, which shades the old figures by one-fifth of a second.

MILE WALK MARK GOES.

William J. Roiker of the Irish-American A. C. was the next to cause his name as a record-breaker. He made his mark in the one-mile walk, after being hard-pressed by T. A. Maroney of the Bronx Church House. The former's time was 6 min. 58 1-2 sec., which betters the old figures by two and three-fifths seconds.

W. S. Hummell of the Multnomah A. C. of Spokane, Wash., knocked the props from under the 440-yards high hurdle record. He cleared the course in 55 2-5 seconds, which excels the old figures by two and four-fifths seconds.

The other mark to be slashed was the 220-yard low hurdles, which proved a "walk-over" for Frank J. Loomis of the Chicago A. A., brother of Joe Loomis, the lanky and versatile athlete who will represent this country in Sweden next month.

LOOMIS A GOOD ONE.

Loomis made his opponents appear like amateurs. He snapped the tape in 25 1-5 seconds, which is two-fifths of a second lower than the old mark. A. F. Ward of the Chicago A. A. lived up to the reputation that came before his arrival for the games. He is indeed a classy sprinter, and compares with the best in the world.

H. M. Williams of Spokane, Wash., and I. H. Mahl of St. Louis, who are both said to have raced in 9 4-5 seconds in their own towns, did not perform in any way to justify their being entered with such fast time.

Ward showed his heels to his rivals from the beginning, and won by almost two yards, in ten seconds flat, which equals the record.

FINE SPRINT BY COLBY

In winning the one-mile run, A. D. Colby of the Boston A. A. made a splendid finishing sprint. He and George Bentch alternated the lead for the first three quarters of the distance, and then Colby gave the spectators a fair example of his sprinting ability. He ran himself out, winning by more than fifty yards, in the exceptionally fast time of 4 minutes 27 4-5 seconds.

Of the twelve starters in the five-mile run, only four succeeded in finishing. H. P. Weeks of the Irish-American A. C. of Boston won handily, after wearing his challengers down by a series of heart-breaking sprints. His clubmate, J. W. Ryan, was the only man in the race who had the gameness to give him battle.

ner's approach was better, but he hit the cup and bounced off a foot on his putt and the hole was halved in five. Evans one up.

Evans drove 280 yards right down the line and had Gardner pressing for distance. The long-hitting amateur champion out-drove Evans again, his shot caroming off a bank into the middle. It was almost carried out of bounds by the wind.

Evans took an iron and was off the line, his long shot finding a trap to the left. Gardner's long iron was on the edge of the green. "Chick" pitched out of the trap dead to the hole. Gardner hit the other ball on a thirty-foot approach putt. The hole was halved in four. Evans 1 up.

Withington Off to Badger Lair Coming Week

Dr. Paul Withington of Cambridge, who is to be head football coach at the University of Wisconsin, will leave for the West next Thursday, accompanied by his assistants, Ernest W. Soucy, who will have charge of the ends, and John W. Doherty, who is to handle the quarterbacks.

The Badgers will report for practice September 18.

Withington's entrance into Wisconsin athletics brings to the West for the first time the Haughton system of football coaching. Withington has been one of Haughton's most valued assistants, having associated with the Harvard gridiron czar as a player and fellow coach.

His career at Wisconsin will be closely watched. If the Badgers enjoy a successful season the regents of that University will likely appoint Withington athletic director and install him in the faculty of their Medical School.

Ruth and Johnson

Two Games for the Sox

Washington, Sept. 9.—"Babe" Ruth and Carl Mays hooked up against Harry Harper and Walter Johnson is expected to be today's program when the World's Champion Red Sox face the Griffmen in a double-header caused by yesterday's terrific downpour of rain during the seventh innings, bringing a 0-0 combat to a close.

That the games will be sizzlers fought tooth and nail from start to finish, is indicated by the manner in which both teams played yesterday. They were ready for blood and the winner of the series should be congratulated for having won, not so much for winning as for overcoming the opposition offered.

HARD LUCK AGAIN.

The Champions have had some tough luck this season and have kept up in the race despite of it. With Barry and Gardner out of the lineup, it takes fifty per cent. of the strength of the infield away. Then again with George Foster's arm in bad shape it cuts down the pitching strength. However, the team is full of fight and confidence.

President J. J. Lannin realizes that his team is weakened at an important period in the race, but feels sure the gameness of his men will bring them back to Fenway Park with the flag assured.

Clark Griffith has keyed his team up to a fighting pitch. He wants them to upset Carrigan's calculations if they possibly can. The sharp fielding yesterday was indicative of what is to come. If the Red Sox and the series here they will have deserved great praise.

For the concluding game of the series, which will also be the final game of the season in the Capital, unusual festivities will be in order. Manager Griffith has invited the entire Third Regiment, District of Columbia National Guard, with the hospital corps and the artillery batteries, to attend the game as his guests.

The soldiers have been in camp in Radio, Va., since being called into the service against invasion of the border along Mexico. They will march from their camps across the river headed by two bands, and will go through a series of military manoeuvres on the field before the game.

In addition to the soldiers' drill, Nick Altrock and Carl Sawyer, the Griffmen's pair of comedians, will be allowed to pull all their best stunts. Washington has never seen these two at their best, for they save their funny stuff for other cities, and the attendance is expected to be boosted accordingly.

The Red Sox and the Senators battled six and a half innings to a 0-0 score. The game was then called on account of rain. Johnson and Ruth were loosed to pitch, but their offering battle was put over until play on account of the threatening weather conditions.

Shore was selected to pitch for Boston, while Shaw did the sharp-shooting for the local outfit. Both pitchers were there with bells on, Shore allowing but three hits, while the Champions only managed to secure two safe blows off Shaw.

THE geography of that subterranean world of which she was now part was not clear to Jean. But directly John went up the steps of the bungalow, the proprietor of the little inn where Jimmy and I were being so completely ignored rushed back to the kitchen, through the trap door and down the stairway to give warning to Madame Gaillard.

It was he whose voice Jean heard telling the wonderfully welcome news that John had come to the bungalow. He had not forgotten her—he had not lost faith and given her up as an adventuress.

His love was great and unquestioning. He trusted her! All these thoughts rushed in full tide of joy through her mind while her blood pounded happily in Jean's heart.

A second later the door where she was playing eavesdropper jerked open and Madame Gaillard came in with such haste and violence that Jean staggered to her knees and almost fell headlong into the room beyond.

Madame Gaillard paid no attention to the girl, but hurried across the room and out of the door through which she had first brought Jean as a prisoner. The girl staggered back to the chair on which she had been sitting and began sobbing—partly in hope, partly in terror, lest something befall John.

Back to the Bungalow

Of course, I didn't know it, but as I went creeping down the stairway leading from the inn, I was undergoing emotions quite similar to those which a little while before had been torturing little Jean Moore.

In the meantime, Madame Gaillard proceeded back to her bungalow via the secret panel in the wall. On the steps of her cottage stood John Miles. She approached him politely and asked what he wanted, but for all his queries as to Jean Moore she had nothing but a patient smile and a shake of her head. At last young Miles shouted angrily, "If you don't produce her at once I'll go for the police."

Madame Gaillard made a deprecating gesture and fell back a step or two, as if in affright. John turned angrily toward the door. It was clear to him that he would have to go for the police. Suddenly a heavy fist brought itself with crashing impact against the base of his skull. He fell to the ground senseless. His assailant nonchalantly tore at the fastenings of her dress and let it fall to the ground. A second later a wig followed the dress and Madame Gaillard stood revealed—a man. He seized Miles in his arms and strode off down the hall.

As I came down the stairway ten minutes after the events of which I told you yesterday, I was remembering something Jimmy had said to me while we waited in the restaurant, whose proprietor was so strangely inattentive: "I'd give a lot to know where that woman went last evening."

It was fairly evident that I was leaving the restaurant by the same mode of egress she had used. Was I, too, about to step into space—into nothingness—into the fourth dimension of the souls who disappear even as she and Jean seemed to have done?

I reflected whimsically that it really wasn't quite fair to my paper—how could they take care of my work if I left them with so little notice? Then I took a firmer grip on my unaccustomed weapon and went on.

Jean ministers to her sweetheart, who has been made unconscious by Mme. Gaillard, now revealed as a man.

From the opposite end of the passageway and of the chain of events which it was going to be so hard for us to unravel, the metamorphosed "Madame" Gaillard had, a few minutes before, begun a pilgrimage toward a reckoning with unsuspected forces.

It was well for us and extremely unfortunate for Gaillard and his counterfeiters that a certain lack of resourcefulness led him to hide both his prisoners in the same place. So, after he had knocked John senseless, he carried his second victim through the sliding panel, down the stairs and into the room where Jean was imprisoned.

He dropped his unconscious burden to the floor with indifference as great as if he were merely casting a log of wood aside, locked the door behind him and strode out of the room and into the counterfeiters' den without any sign of recognition of the palpitating girl who had jumped to her feet with a cry at first glimpse of the burden he was carrying.

A Use for Water

Gaillard had shown a certain humaneness in his treatment of his prisoner in that he had given Jean food and water. Now she found instant use for that water, and began her efforts to revive her beloved.

She dropped to the floor, took John Miles' head in her lap and moistened his face. In a few moments her efforts were rewarded. Miles opened his eyes and stared at her with that queer unbelieving look people sometimes show when waking from unconsciousness—perhaps he thought he was seeing a vision—that Jean was an angel greeting him on his arrival in heaven.

The "angel" bent her head and her lips met his. Then John knew that he was still on earth, and that the woman he loved was restored to him somehow by a miracle.

A moment later the lovers found themselves in complete darkness, for when Gaillard reached the counterfeiters' den he switched off the light in the little room where he had left his prisoners. He meant to make them utterly helpless while he was deciding upon their doom.

His first move was to turn to the proprietor angrily and order him back to his place. That was how Jimmy and I got our prisoner.

Now when Jimmy left me and crept to the cellar he found some strange plotting going on there. The very first thing he heard was Gaillard's voice calling to his men in fearsome words: "If they get out of here alive we all go to the pen."

A second later Gaillard, followed by his three fellow conspirators, crossed the room and vanished through the doorway opposite Jimmy. He crossed the room very quietly and stood listening at the door.

Then suddenly he cautiously opened the door an inch and looked through. Gaillard was brandishing his revolver threateningly and Miles and a pretty light-haired girl, who Jimmy guessed at once was the missing Jean, were cowering away from it.

A Sinister Plot

Then Jimmy saw the counterfeiters making certain preparations which fairly caused his blood to boil. They were tearing slips of paper into different lengths and dropping them into a hat. Jimmy knew that that simple proceeding had a very sinister portent—evidently they were going to draw lots—and the loser would be appointed to do away with the helpless man and girl who, if they escaped alive, would have such dangerous information to disseminate.

Jimmy knew his time was not yet. Single handed he could hardly hope to manage the four desperadoes. Half to himself he murmured a little obiurgation against John Miles. "For the love of Mike, you're a husky brute, Miles—stand upon your feet and act like a man." But Miles showed no signs of spirit. He cowered in the corner in terror that seemed as abject as Jean's very evident fright.

There was a single moment when Jimmy felt that John Miles' dispirited eyes had glimpsed him lurking in the blackness of the room beyond. He thought he saw a flicker of some unnamed emotion pass over Miles' face, and then he dismissed it hopelessly. "The poor boob! He hasn't got any more spirit than his cows and chickens. Blue Cove doesn't seem to raise any very doughty native sons!"

"Playing it alone" against four men with murder in their hearts wasn't anything less than taking desperate chances, but Jimmy, for all his friendly ingenuousness of countenance and in spite of the cheerful grin which simply couldn't keep away from his face, was an entirely fearless youth.

Perhaps his grin was an asset—it often made dangerous foes measure him very casually. Jimmy had always the advantage of knowing the strong points of his foes and giving danger due credit. But he was generally the unknown, unmeasured knight in any tourney.

Now he reached through the crack in the doorway and pressed the electric switch.

In one second Gaillard realized that he had drawn the fatal chance, picked up his gun to aim it and Jimmy made his plans to fight it out alone.

But in another second John Miles put his own plans into action. He leaped across the room with panther-like speed; the gun in Gaillard's hand fell to the floor with a crash, and the counterfeiters' reinforcements sprang forward. At that point Mr. Barton entered the fray and the lights switched on again on a scene such as I had never before witnessed.

There were men rolling about on the floor, spitting and snarling like wildcats. All the animal instinct of humanity seems to come to the fore in a fight.

When I crept down the dark and narrow stairway in search of Jimmy I had expected almost anything sinister, menacing, ghastly and terrifying. But this primitive rough and tumble fight, with human bodies thudding over each other and human lungs expelling air in harsh gasps seemed almost laughable in its ugly reality.

Gaillard Goes Down

I found myself on the edge of the fray—there were men all about me fighting for life. The spirit of conflict took possession of me. I raised my gun and commanded rather melodramatically, though I did not suspect it at the time, "Hands up!"

Gaillard leaped toward me and almost automatically I fired. He fell face downward on the floor. Afterward I found that I had actually wounded a fellow-being and that gave me no particular happiness. But at the moment I had time for only one thought: I had brought the necessary reinforcements—and they were in time!

Without their leader the counterfeiters were arrant cowards, disorganized, incapable of making a stand. Jimmy and John Miles had no difficulty in conquering them.

And that is how Jimmy Barton got his story of the counterfeiters and Beatrice Fairfax helped bring back Jean Moore from the Port of Missing Girls into the haven of John Miles' arms.

The World's Greatest Mimic

The Chameleon and Its Marvelous Power

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I have been reading about some pet chameleons kept by a fancier of animal curiosities in London. I have, myself, seen chameleons kept as pets. I think the keeping of a pet chameleon, and the observation of its ways and peculiarities, is capable of furnishing a good basis for an education in zoology and biology.

The chameleon is a truly wonderful creature. Away back toward the roots of its ancestral tree are such creatures as the giant ichthyosaurs, plesiosaurs, mosasaurs, brontosaurs and other monsters of the great age of reptiles, for the chameleon is a lizard and all of those colossi of the past time were also lizards.

I do not mean that the little chameleon is descended in a direct line from the mighty saurians of old, but if the animal inhabitants of the globe were summoned to appear in array, each species falling into rank with its nearest relatives, both past and present, then the chameleon would be found in the vast army of the lizards, and thousands of its kind might ride in the procession perched on the back of a plesiosaur.

A chameleon is only a few inches long, and not at all terrifying to look at unless you use a magnifying glass, or imagine yourself to be a fly within reach of its long, lightning - quick, glue - tipped tongue. Chameleons are useful creatures because they live upon flies and other noxious insects, and they take their prey with such invisibly instantaneous motions that the ancients had a legend that they lived upon air.

Their abode is among the leaves and twigs of plants. They are very happy among the ferns and house-plants, placed where flies abound. But it is very difficult, if not impossible, to keep a chameleon alive during the Winter. Their native country is the tropics, and they pine for the sun.

The most peculiar thing about a chameleon is its power of changing color. When it is at rest on, or among, green leaves, it puts on a green coat, so that sometimes one has to search a long time in order to find the animal, although it may be right under the eyes. But if the chameleon changes its place and steps on brown or gray bark, the color of its coat alters to accord with the background, and again it becomes almost invisible. It can also assume a yellow color when necessary, and its hues run through a great variety of tints. Occasionally it appears black. Whether these wonderful changes are due to the conscious action of the little animal, or to some nervous reaction arising from the influence of the different colored rays of light impinging on its body, is a question which cannot be answered with the certainty that might be attained if we could enter into the mind of the chameleon itself and look upon the world through its eyes.

The scientific naturalist is disposed to ascribe as little as possible to the individual initiative of the lower animals and as much as possible to the unconscious response of their organisms to impulses from without. Many marvellous examples of nerve action under the stimulus of light are known, which have all the external appearance of being due to the will power of the animal concerned.

The purpose of the changeability of color with which the chameleon has been gifted seems evident enough. It is a case of what is called "protective coloration," and many animals possess it, though in a much lesser degree than the chameleon. Its rapid variability is its chief peculiarity in this case.

Being able to mimic the color of either leaves or bark, according to the situation which it happens to occupy, the chameleon can ambush itself without any cover. The family cat on a hunt for birds would probably be willing to give several of its legendary nine lives in exchange for the power of rendering itself invisible by assuming the various hues of its surroundings as it creeps noiselessly toward a keen-eyed robin.

The chameleon scheme of dress is in strict accord with the modern military uniforms. Both are conceived with the same purpose, viz., to have all the shadows on your side and to give none to the other.

First deceive and then kill! Of course animals cannot be blamed for this, but men have a moral sense which cries out against all forms of sneaking, but it is a sense which seems to have become somewhat dulled of late. A chameleon army does not awake the nobler sentiments like an army whose gallant dress proclaims a gallant heart.

The chameleon possesses another advantage as a prowler. Its eyes are almost as remarkable as its chromatic variability. Each eye can move independently of the one on the other side of the head, so that the animal can look backward and forward at the same time. It needs all of these advantages when it has to deal with such wary creatures as flies.

SAY BAY STATE MILITIA CARDS ARE FAULTY

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., Sept. 8.—The three militia officers sent here by Adjutant-General Pearson to make a muster record of the Massachusetts guardsmen on the border report that many of the cards made out in Framingham are incorrect.

One of the officers said that sixty per cent. of the cards of one company were faulty.

They said that the duplicate list sought by Adjutant-General Pearson will be valuable, as it will give an opportunity to make corrections as cards are checked.

They claim also that a list is essential to the State in that the names will have to be vouched for from State records should Congress pass an act providing for the National Guardsmen with dependents.

SHERBURNE WIRES McCALL.

Lieutenant H. M. Rugg called on Colonel John H. Sherburne of the First Field Artillery again yesterday but Colonel Sherburne stood pat on his refusal to furnish a new card index of the men in his command. Colonel Sherburne told Lieutenant Rugg that he had telegraphed to Governor McCall for instructions and that until he heard from the Governor he would take no action on the request of the emissaries of Adjutant-General Pearson.

Colonel Sherburne asked Governor McCall if it would not be sufficient to supply the records of men whose names were not on the muster roll record at the State House instead of a complete new list.

General E. Leroy Sweetser has issued an order to the Second Massachusetts Brigade to supply the adjutant-general with the desired data on the ground that it would be vital to enlisted men with claims for dependents. Camp gossip has it that the fuss is an echo of an old political feud.

REGIMENTAL NEWSPAPER.

Colonel Edward L. Logan is to start a regimental newspaper. It is to be a four-sheet production and Sergeant-Major Paul Hines, a Boston reporter, is to be editor-in-chief. The bulletin sent daily by Mayor Curley known as "Bentonia" has not been received at Camp Cotton for nearly a week.

Companies H and I of the Ninth have started company papers and are showing great rivalry in "extras."

The cavalry has been undergoing vigorous drilling the past two weeks in the provisional cavalry regiment. In a shower Wednesday the regiment had a property inspection and bivouacked under pup tents, establishing ground picket lines which were strange to the horses now used to high lines. The Bay State horsemen were given a hurdle drill.

OUT OF HOSPITAL.

Sergeant Andrew McDonald of L Company of the Fifth has been discharged from the base hospital following an attack of laryngytis.

Major Keville's battalion of the Eighth practiced advanced guard in open order and Major Bouve's and Major Whitney's battalions of the Fifth went through a mimic battle on the mesa.

Lieutenant Joseph W. McConnell, acting commander of Company A, Ninth Regiment, who went home on a furlough owing to the illness of his mother, has just returned to El Paso yesterday when he received a wire announcing her death. He had left home believing she would recover.

FIVE RESCUED FROM LYNN TENEMENT FIRE

A fire, which consumed the building, No. 98 Blossom street, Lynn, owned by Jacob Chuker, caused much excitement. The building was a three-story wooden structure, the ground floor of which was a store, and the two upper floors housed families. The fire started in the store and burned up through the tenements. Four children were carried out through the flames by their parents, but none was hurt. Philip Tapper, forty-five years old, was in bed with rheumatism on the third floor, and was carried to the street by his son, Alexander, and Isadore Krasnow, a neighbor.

Several explosions were heard during the fire, and one of the explosions caused the chemical wagon to catch fire. Fireman Robert Leeson jumped to the seat of the burning machine and drove it away from the scene of action. The damage from the fire is estimated by the police at $2,000.

HOLD COUPLE ON SHOPLIFTING CHARGE

A couple known as "Mr. and Mrs. McDonald" are under arrest on a shoplifting charge following a search of their home in a Huntington ave apartment house. According to the police the search revealed hundreds of dollars' worth of clothes, hats, bags and other articles which, it is charged, were stolen from downtown department stores.

Among the articles found were silk gowns, sashes, expensive leather bags, a bird of paradise, which is valued at $100, a set of cigrettes valued at $75, a $35 camera, a set of furs valued at about $100, and a display of silks, laces, handbags, jewelry, watch cases and other articles.

MEXICANS ASK JOINT PATROL ON BORDER

New London, Sept. 9—Consideration of the several plans for joint protection of the border, to prevent future incursions from the Mexican side, today occupied the American commission. Members of the Mexican commission, with the exception of Senor Bonillas, were in New York. Mr. Mott of the American commission, was absent on private business.

The plans suggested by the Mexican commission for guarding the international boundary are:

1—Joint patrol by a specified number of American and Mexican troops, with a mutual understanding that either body be permitted to follow a "hot trail" by pursuit of bandits over the border.

2—A joint patrol with the centralization of a strip twenty miles wide on each side of the border, all officers of both countries to be disarmed within the limits of the neutral strip.

3—Ample sufficient guarantee from the Carranza government that all bandits will be driven from adjacent territory contiguous to the border, with a reserve of American troops to be stationed on the border for additional security.

Hughes 10 to 8 Favorite in Wall Street

New York, Sept. 9

THE odds quoted in Wall street election betting today were 10 to 8 on Hughes to beat Wilson.

A month ago, and before Hughes went on his western trip, the odds were 2 to 1 and 9 to 5 on the Republican candidate. There is plenty of Wilson money in the market, but it is being held off for 1 to 2.

Edward McQuade of the Curb said he expected the wagers to stick up for another ten days, or after the primaries.

"The bets so far have been small," he said. "There is a lot of Wilson money waiting for that 2 to 1, when the Hughes men talked about a while ago."

HUGHES COUNTS ON VICTORY IN MAINE

By International News Service.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 9—Republican leaders on the final day of the Maine campaign today predicted Congressman Charles Hinds Randall of Los Angeles would be elected to succeed Senator Obadiah Gardner, who is keeping his seat. He also asserted that in the November election the nation would turn to the Republican party for leadership.

Mr. Hughes, though wearied by the long tour that took him to the Pacific coast and back to the Atlantic seaboard, that he had entirely recovered from his strenuous campaigning, as his wife, Mrs. Hughes, declared that she would be glad to get back to Washington, as she never had a more enjoyable time in her life.

PARTY IS SCATTERED.

Mr. Hughes laughed today over the manner in which his party for the first time since it left New York, August 6, was scattered on Thursday to the four winds. He had concluded his address to the Summer colony at exclusive York Harbor. Hughes decided that because of the heavy fog he would go to Portland by shipboard, leaving the proposed motor trip to Portland, sixty miles distant, and go there by train.

Charles Farnham, manager of the tour, laid out the plan. He and the committee's money for a special train, and members of the party were advised that the motor trip had been abandoned. There was a wholesale dismissal of autos and the party began making for the train when the local committee reached Hughes.

HUGHES GOES BY MOTOR.

"You've got to go by motor," they said. "We have 2,000 people lined up along the road to see and cheer you, and they must not be disappointed."

Hughes made a wry face and relented. The train started for Portland, and left before the other members of the party knew it. Hughes was on his way to Portland by motor. From here on it was a record breaker. Up to 10 o'clock last night the correspondents continued to limit into Portland. It cost the national committee $200 to carry three men over to Portland by train.

Mr. Hughes had breakfast at Bangor today and then came here by train.

FINANCIAL

A roaring bull market, with United States Steel leading the upward drive of prices, was experienced during the tumultuous session of the New York stock exchange today. No fewer than five new high records were attained.

Gains of from one to five points and over were common. The extraordinary rise in the price of Steel, however, was the greatest individual gain, some of which had fractional losses since the unfavorable government report.

But the notable feature was the phenomenal rise in United States Steel common, which, after opening at 130¾, the stock advanced to 137¾, a gain of 3½ points for the day.

Incentive for the strength was found in the United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage statement, which looks August 31 amounted to 4,277,000 tons, compared with 3,932,000 tons on July 31, and 3,909,000 on August 31, 1915.

Other active U. S. Steel, high records were made by Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies at 82, preferred at 87, Republic at 100, and Sloss at 54½, and U. S. Rubber at 78¾. Central Leather reached 100 for the year at 99¾.

Gains in the rails of importance and preferred stocks were the feature of the Boston market, both making new high records. Arizona Commercial also touched a new maximum for all time. The market was strong and active all day.

Other features in Boston were U. S. Smelting, American Zinc, Lead and Smelt. Among gains were Almadis, Allouez 1, Copper Range ½, U. S. Smelting, Cumberland, Utah, Atlantic Gulf common 3¼ and New Haven 9.

An Important Question We Ask Mr. Hughes to Answer Categorically

WE have a question to ask you, Mr. Hughes.

In the act of Congress, passed in 1912, providing for the permanent government and operation of the Panama Canal, American coastwise voyaging vessels were exempted from tolls.

This exemption was made, of course, to build up an American merchant marine and to afford cheaper transportation from west coast to east coast than the railroads afforded.

The platform adopted at Baltimore, on July 2, 1912, expressly endorsed this exemption and pledged the candidate of the Democratic party to support it, in these words:

"We favor the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade passing through the Panama Canal."

Furthermore, Mr. Wilson, in a speech to the farmers of Pennsylvania, definitely denounced the Republican party for its failure to maintain the rights of American coastwise shipping to free passage through the canal. This failure of the Republican party Mr. Wilson attributed to the sinister influence of the railroads.

Mr. Wilson, running upon that platform and that pledge, was elected, and in less than eighteen months after his inauguration he demanded that the Democratic Congress repeal the exemption of American ships from tolls, and went in person to utter a vague statement of impending, unknown dangers, to be removed only by depriving these American ships of their exemption from tolls. The Democratic Congress jumped at the crack of the presidential whip and did repeal the exemption clause of the Canal Act.

What we want to ask you, Mr. Hughes, is where you stand upon this important national question.

We know where Mr. Wilson stands.

He has broken his own word and repudiated the party platform declaration in order to take a legitimate freight advantage away from Americans.

Whether Mr. Wilson thus did his worst to destroy the American merchant marine through ignorance or in obedience to secret political railroad pressure, we cannot certainly say. But one reason or the other MUST BE the true one.

Now, Mr. Hughes, the American people are entitled to know what you will do about the exemptions of American ships using this American canal in trading from one American port to another.

Will the influences which were able to persuade Mr. Wilson to break his word and to repudiate his party platform have power to persuade YOU not to interfere with this strangle-hold upon our domestic commerce and this destruction of our hopes of an American merchant marine?

The country has a right to hear what you will do about this, if you are elected, Mr. Hughes.

You will doubtless not fail to notice that we pay you the compliment of implied confidence in whatever you may promise to do.

We all want to hear a statement by you because we have faith that YOU will not break your pledge and falsify your promise after you have been elected.

That is why the AMERICAN asks, and will continue to ask, you, Mr. Hughes, to make a plain, explicit declaration of whether you will or will not do your best, if elected, to restore the exemptions given to American coastwise trading ships by the Panama Canal Act of 1912.

New England's First Great Test of the Referendum

THE voters of Maine will on Monday next decide whether or not they approve the Fifty-Four-Hour Law, which was passed unanimously by the Maine Legislature at its last session.

This is a very interesting event. It will be the first great test of the referendum in New England. The law forbids the working of women and children more than fifty-four hours a week in the Maine factories, except in those factories where the goods used are perishable.

Naturally the manufacturers of Maine are, as everywhere else, opposed to the shortening of the hours of labor. The first short-hour bill thirty years ago was opposed as vigorously when the hours of labor were more than sixty as the fifty-four-hour bill is now opposed. The manufacturers believe that there is a chance that the people of Maine do not approve of this law. They also have an idea that they can make the farmers believe that the law affects them, notwithstanding the fact that the Attorney-General has ruled that the law does not affect the farmers.

So the manufacturers have appealed to all the voters on this important question. The State Labor Commission and all the farsighted leaders of the State approve of the law. How will the people of Maine vote on it? It is a very interesting experiment.

If civilization advances and we continue the pursuit of happiness consistently and wisely, we shall have shorter and shorter hours of labor until we reach that wise division of the day into rest and work in which there will be work enough to prevent the idle mind from becoming the devil's workshop and rest enough to give us health and pleasure.

The Fifty-Four-Hour Law is being adopted by all the progressive and farsighted States of the Union. It is in the line of progress.

HOO, HOO, MRS. JONES, I'M GOING TO BRING YOUR UNCLE UP FROM THE DEPOT. WILLIE'S CAR IS NO GOOD
OH, THANK YOU SO MUCH, SHERIFF

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Goat

Because a dance was held on the lawn of Charles W. Fairbanks he narrowly escaped the same discipline that was visited on him eight years ago when somebody served a cocktail at a dinner which he paid for. The fact that Fairbanks did not attend either the dance or the dinner did not save his reputation.

WHENEVER a bibulous Hoosier
Goes out on a whale of a tear
And orders a stein of red raspberry wine,
With a wildly convivial air,
The people rise up in their horror
And in a unanimous hiss
They say: "Gracious me! Can such awful things be?
We must discipline Fairbanks for this!"

WHENEVER, in old Indiana,
Afar from the eye of the law,
The boys sit all night by a close-curtained light
Engaged in a small game of draw,
And a flat-footed, lynx-eyed policeman
Finds out where the gambling is at,
The people cry out with a stern, strident shout:
"We must discipline Fairbanks for that."

WHENEVER, where ripples the Wabash,
The youngsters get touched with romance
And glide 'round the floor for an hour or more
Through the sensuous maze of the dance,
The people say: "This is a subject
We really ought not to discuss,
But our State's face to face with an awful disgrace
And Fairbanks shall answer to us!"

Risky Venture

If the practice of charging by the word for cable dispatches is to be adopted, that new Russian cable will soon be in the hands of a receiver.

Useless Information

It seems a waste of time for Mr. Root to give out information as to how to pronounce his name. The great majority of Americans call him something else, anyway.

Let the Party Reveal Himself

Mr. Hughes was led to a mountain top on his western trip, but dispatches fail to state who it was who showed and offered him the kingdoms of the earth.

Clearing Up the Situation

Now Mr. Wilson can go ahead with the full assurance that he was actually nominated by the Democratic party in convention assembled in St. Louis last June.

How Women Can Aid Preparedness

By G. Vere Tyler

ANYTHING incumbent upon women who desire to be prepared for war is universal sisterhood.

The bloody rivers of war wash away all man-made distinctions.

The outcast of the streets, as well as the society queen, has the right to her heart-throb of patriotism and cannot be denied her hope of salvation through the stirring of her better nature.

In the ranks of women, growing stronger and purer and nobler through the serious contemplation of war's horrors, they who are already mentally advancing towards posts of terror, where they are to stand firm to aid and inspire, should seek to take with them their sisters from all walks of life. The "lowest" woman may be God's chosen one in chains. To be prepared for war, women must be ready to break the chains of the outcast and sound the clarion call that she, too, may be needed.

No soldier asks another soldier: What are your morals? It is: Brother, are you ready; are you strong; are you sure of yourself? So it should be with women: Sister, are you strong; are you ready; are you sure of yourself? Poor, battered one, has your soul in this dread hour awakened to a new call, to higher things, higher purposes? Are you, too, ready to give aid, and be the soldier's inspiration?

No period of the world's history was ever so ripe for an expression of woman's greatness. She has but to put away childish things, old distinctions, old prejudices, old errors, that still blister upon her sex.

I seem to see tired sisters of the underworld crying out for one thrill of their submerged souls. The right to be prepared for war may give it.

Men have ever stood for universal brotherhood. Women who are preparing for war should proclaim universal sisterhood! They should send forth the stirring messages that ALL women are expected to trim their lamps and be ready at the sound of the bugle call.

The thought of women breaking the chains of social and moral discrimination in one universal cause is so illuminating that the heart almost ceases to beat. If being prepared for war should cause women to stand as men do, shoulder to shoulder, with hearts that beat as one, its great horrors would for one brief moment be lost in glory.

To be prepared for war, women should rise up and boldly snap every chain that has bound them to the old conventional ideas of feminine slavery, both in the home and in the street.

To be prepared for war, it should be considered an affectation for one woman to draw her skirts aside when she passes another woman.

To be prepared for war, the moral and social duty of every woman is to liberate captives of vice—to open the doors of those prisons of degradation that man has built.

To be prepared for war, woman must equal man, not only in heroism, endurance, patience and stern duty, but in broadmindedness.

Milk Is Jumpy. Price Looks Up. Why and Wherefore of the Milk Argument Form a Sunday AMERICAN Feature—Drug Circles of Chelsea and South End—The Mayflower Germ—Let's Indict the Head Waiter—Sad Day Coming for the Auto—Besides All the Regular News Tomorrow.

It was fun to recite it as a child—

"Hey Diddle Diddle,
The cat and the fiddle,
The cow jumped over the moon——"

Never mind what the cat and dog did.

It's what Bossy Cow did—and has been up to ever since—that interests us. When she cleared the moon milk was high.

It has remained so. Now Bossy is at large again and she is all set for a jump, milk and all, so they say. For the New England Milk Producers' Association holds its long-dreaded "fix the price" meeting in Boston, beginning Tuesday.

What they decide will affect the Winter price of milk, to say nothing of other complications among producers, transporters—meaning railroads—distributors, and last and always least, the consumers.

The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will have an important article, or double article, on the Boston and New England milk situation.

One part will be by a representative of the producers, the farmers. The other will be from the distributors' side. Both will combine to form a timely array of argument on the milk tangle.

Another life-long bogey vanishes. Always have we been mortal scared of head waiters.

Awesome person, a head waiter. Looks through and through you. Looks right into your pocket and knows that your roll of bills is all ones. Fancy trying to snub a head waiter.

But this legal snarl over the hotel porter giving up his tips to the head porter led to talk of waiters' tips and of head waiters.

Now, under a neat interpretation of the law, it is said that a head waiter may actually be INDICTED if he accepts a tip from you, to secure a table for instance.

It is told in an entertaining story tomorrow. Try it on your head waiter.

The WHEEL ABOUT THE HUB for 1916 begins next Friday. Then the automobile takes second place.

This is the annual "wheel-grimage" of the Boston Bicycle Club, which is the very oldest bicycle organization in the Western Hemisphere and the second oldest in the world. It yields only to the Pickwick Club of London—named for the famous creation of Dickens and calling all its members by old Pickwick names.

The Boston Bicycle Club members, two score or more, wheel every year around the Hub, literally. They bring out their "bikes" and ride clear around the big city. It takes them—with stops—about two days to make the run.

Some don't make it at all on bicycles. They use automobiles. But a strict club rule says that, on the annual WHEEL ABOUT THE HUB all members in autos must travel in the rear of the 'cyclists.

For once in the year, at least, the motor is humbled before the pedal. The story of what this club was and is and is going to do is cheerful reading.

Speaking of wheels, a one-wheel vehicle over in Hopkinton has trundled its way right up to the Public Service Commission, via the no-license route.

Question is: Can a man in a "dry" town, with no pony express available, wheel home his own beer order from the railroad station in his own wheelbarrow?

Arthur Wallace said he could. The freight agent said: 'No." The brewers said the f. a. was wrong. The Public Service Commission is now asked to decide. Details and developments are worth your reading.

An AMERICAN reporter discovered this week that the prospect of a big Plymouth ter-centennial in 1920 has already started many persons on a still hunt for Mayflower ancestry.

He also found how to be a Mayflower descendant, what is necessary, who one must be. A diverting story and just as human as human nature.

Cartoonist Moynahan takes you this week out on the Elevated to Roxbury, in and out and roundabout at Dudley street terminal, thence clear out to Forest Hills, with many a skip and many a sketch and plenty of cheery chatter. For "Moy" can both 'rite" and 'dror," as the kid spelled it.

The Harrison anti-drug law has driven the "dope" victims and sellers pretty well to the wall in Greater Boston. But do you know where the "stuff" still flourishes?

Chelsea and the South End.

If you live in either of those suburbs you will be particularly alive to this story.

Even more wretched than the "dope" victim is the unfortunate girl caught in the slimy clutches of the "white slaver."

The AMERICAN will expose tomorrow "white slave" conditions in Providence which will appall the better element of the city. The conditions are frightful. The article is frank.

Out of war-torn Europe comes a pretty story. It deals with a real prince and princess who have been promised to each other. The beautiful part of it is that they love each other. Usually love is a minor factor in these Cabinet-made royal betrothals. The love story, names, pictures and all is a feature of the Magazine section of the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow.

Other Magazine high-lights include:

"Dogfish as Delicious Food," "The Truth About the Chorus Girl"—this by Flo. Zeigfeld himself—"Unexpected Moral Changes Produced by the War," "Our Imminent Peril from an Awakened Asia" and "How Divorce Is Destroying the Wicked Harems."

Mother and the girls, of course, will be delighted to meet the "New Big Sleeve Tea Gowns" presented by Lady Duff-Gordon.
